

Left, Students from one of the Fine Arts Seminar classes pose with Erin (center) and right, Erin performs with Fine Arts Seminar student, Josh Santana

Singer/Songwriter, Erin Quillinan, recently completed her residency at the SSFA. She worked with Fine Arts Seminar and English 12 students. She helped students write, perform, and record their own songs based on their own life experiences. "It's always been my position that everyone can create their own songs," says Quillinan. Students rehearsed and performed their songs for others in the class. All the recorded songs were put on disc for students as a reminder of their abilities as songwriters and performers.

The SHS Sculpture
classes proudly presents

GO FIGURE

An exhibit of over 35
mixed media abstract
figure sculptures

On display now in the SHS Library

Art students work selected for “Art in Three Dimensions” recently the annual regional Art Supervisors juried 3-D art show was held at the new Mohanasen art gallery. From hundreds of submissions, a few dozen works were selected. Nine works from eight SHS students were chosen for the show. They are Sabia Filiaci, Symara Vasquez, Mary Symanoski, Josh Santana, Bianca Davies, Kelly Spencer, Leah Ketchen, and Katelyn Robillard. Congratulations to these winners!

Leah Ketchen's "Carry Their Burden's."
One of the works chosen for the annual 3-D show

Sarnacki's classes

Fine Arts Seminar recently, just finished their work on their artist hero project. Students acquainted others about their chosen artist and created a Fine Arts companion that demonstrated a “conceptual collaboration” with that artist. Currently they are pursuing our artist as Activist unit, where they research an issue of concern, present their findings, and create a Fine Arts companion designed to bring a deeper understanding of their issue.

Sculpture classes are currently finishing their life sized self portraits in clay. Later in the semester all the work will be put on display in the SHS library.

Senior, Aeysha Higginbotham working on her clay bust.

Studio in Art just finished their illustration project. Each student checked out a fantasy themed book from our library, read it, and created a cover illustration in paint. Students then wrote and typed an “about the illustrator” description Along with their photo it was placed on the back of the work. They are now working with the Doodle 4 Google competition.